

This old building on the northwest corner of Main Street and Havens Avenue dated back to the 1870's. Over the years many different stores conducted their business from this building, the last one was a kosher delicatessen. A fire destroyed the building in 1991 and to this day this corner is an empty lot.

A 1960 picture of the Patchogue Recreational Bowling Alley on Havens Avenue. This building is dating back to the turn of the century and it had many uses over the last 100 years. It was called the Auditorium in its early years, where movies were shown by Roscoe Turner on Saturday nights for a 5 cent fee. Seating was on folding chairs. In 1913 William B. Sinn operated the Suffolk County Laundry in the basement. In 1926 the Austin Manufacturing Company leased the Auditorium to manufacture fine women's clothing. Old timer Mike Weiner recalled playing basketball here, which required extra skill, because many baskets had to be shot over the exposed roof trusses. The last tenant was Maggio's Bowling Alley. This building possibly had other uses besides the ones mentioned. In 2006 the roof partially collapsed after the building had sat vacant for many years and it had to be demolished.
