

Lou & Mack's restaurant was owned by the Dorr brothers, William and Hermann. The restaurant was to the east of Gutte's on West Main Street in this 1942 picture. Gutte's at this time was a grocery store, established in 1931. Nick's Shoe Repair was the next building to the east, followed by the Liberty Restaurant and Swezey's. The reason for the concerned look on the soldiers face is because of "Duke", the Patchogue mascot, who is just visible behind the car.

An interior picture of Lou & Mack's restaurant and its patrons. Willie Dorr is standing behind the table and the gentleman wearing a white shirt is Gus Moos, a well known local expert zither player. The five zithers on the table indicate that this must be the local zither club.
