

West Main Street, west of Railroad Avenue, underwent great changes in the 1980's and 1990. Old buildings on the north side were demolished and the Breslin Realty Development Corporation started the construction of a large commercial building on this site. The corner stone was laid November 13, 1990.. This is a picture of the ground breaking ceremony.

The Breslin building under construction, December 1990.

Disputes between Mr. Breslin and the Village of Patchogue delayed the completion of the building for several years. This episode came to an end when Brookhaven Memorial Hospital bought the building in 1997 for $ 1.765 million. This $6 million project turned this 27,000 square foot building into a 24 station dialysis center, a home care agency and a financial office. This is a 2001 picture.

The entrance to the BMH dialysis center, 2004.