

The southeast corner of Main Street and West Avenue in August 1981, site of the future Sixth District Court building.

The demolition of the buildings on the southeast corner of West Main Street and West Avenue took place in December 1982. This was phase 1 of the demolition, the Hodkin building, still standing in the background, would be demolished in the following month.

Inauguration of the Sixth District Court building, on the southeast corner of Main Street and West Avenue. Suffolk County Executive Peter Cohalan is cutting the ribbon and Legislator John Foley, on the left, is holding the ribbon. The court building was constructed in 1983 and completed at the end of the year.