

The Union Savings Bank was established in 1896 and opened its offices in the Tower Building on the 'Four Corners', above the Swezey and Newins store. In 1912 this new bank was built in the northwest corner of South Ocean Avenue and Church Street in the style of the Georgian Period of classic colonial architecture. It was faced with the whitest Vermont marble available.

Interior of the Union Savings Bank, 1918.

Dr. Agate Foster's former home on the northwest corner of Ocean Avenue and Gerard Street. At the time this picture was taken, c. 1970, the house was vacant. This house was an apartment house in the 1940's and a home for the elderly before it was demolished in the 1970's.