

The Station Bar and Grille on South Ocean Avenue, next to the railroad tracks. This dilapidated building was demolished in 1952 and Nancy's Restaurant would be built on this spot.

Nancy's Restaurant on South Ocean Avenue, next to the railroad tracks. The restaurant was built on the site of an old, large structure that was demolished in 1952. Nancy's was a popular restaurant. A fire March 15, 1969 destroyed the restaurant, but it was immediately rebuilt.

Nancy's Restaurant the way it looked after it was rebuilt. In August of 1970 it came under new ownership and was called the Golden Lantern. The restaurant was gutted by a flash fire April 26, 1971 and never rebuilt.
