

Now this is what one would call a major tune up! Or are these mechanics building a car from a do it yourself kit? The scene is at J.O. Hulse's garage at 52 West Main Street and the year is c. 1905.

This is definitely a young fellow's car, just the bare essentials.

And some people prefer a beautiful horse anytime over a noisy automobile. This picture of Edgar Sharp and his horse and buggy was taken in 1903. Edgar Sharp had an insurance and real estate office in the Mills building.
