

These employees of the lace mill are winding the brass bobbins that would later feed the yarn to the looms.

One of the many big looms in the weaving shed.

On the upper floors of the lace mill, female employees are busy inspecting and sewing lace curtains and other products.

