

Thirteen pretty girls are representing the 13 original colonies in this 1905 Decoration Day picture.

It is great fun for children to watch a parade, but there is no greater thrill than to be a participant in the march. Here are the Maple Avenue school-children in a 1905 parade.

The local merchants were only too happy to supply the transportation for the parades. Here is the decorated wagon of the George Jones Coal Yard on the corner of North Ocean Avenue and Lakewood Street, carrying a bevy of beauties. Hope they swept the wagon out good, or many mamas would have been very angry.
