

This program is for the play "Wild Oats," performed by the Patchogue Amateurs, a local amateur theater group. While Al Trahern's performances were held on weekdays the local talents had the stage on weekends. Many popular local names are listed as cast members.

Here is a program for the comedy "Men, Maids and Matchmakers." The Girl's Dramatic Society was one of the local amateur theater groups. Many local people took the opportunity to show their talents on the stage of the Lyceum.

Judge Wilmot M. Smith's invitation to Shakespearian recitals given at his home on East Main Street. People with appreciation of the finer arts would enjoy these small gatherings at the homes of prominent citizens to listen to recitals given by well known actors.