Long Island Place Names

- Administrative Divisions of New York [electronic resource] (Wikipedia) -- If you're not from New York State, this can help you avoid or unscramble a lot of political-geographic confusion. Esp. note, that on Long Island, Towns in Nassau and Suffolk are large administrative districts of counties. Many villages (incorporated or unincorporated) comprise each Town. In Nassau County, there are also 2 cities. Some L.I. Towns have the same name as the principal village in that town. Note also that Kings (or Brooklyn) and Queens Counties became part of Greater New York City in 1900. Until then Kings and Queens County had their own Towns. Areas of these Counties, also called Boroughs of NYC, are generally referred to as Neighborhoods. In 1899 the 3 easternmost Towns of Queens voted not to become part of NYC, and in 1900 were reconstituted as Nassau County.
  - The current 10 Towns of Suffolk County: Babylon (formerly Huntington South), Huntington, Islip, Smithtown, Brookhaven, Riverhead (formerly part of Southold), Southold, Shelter Island (formerly part of Southold), Southampton, East Hampton.
  - The current 3 Towns of Nassau County: North Hempstead, Hempstead, Oyster Bay
  - Nassau County's 2 cities: Long Beach and Glen Cove
- Gazetteers (Where am I?)
  - [A Gazetteer of the State of New York: Embracing an Ample Survey and Description of its Counties, Towns, Cities, Villages, Canals, Mountains, Lakes, Rivers, Creeks, and Natural Topography. Note also that many L.I. families had divided loyalties, and even some of those serving in the militia were torn between loyalty to an American union and loyalty to the British crown, even after 4 months following the breakout of the American Revolution. What ensued was a civil war, and also a contest for the “minds and hearts” of citizens or subjects. You could literally be putting your life, the safety of your family and of your home and possessions on the line with your signature. The same was true if you later signed the oath of Allegiance to the Crown, rejecting your former allegiance to Congress. -- MR]

SHIPWRECKS

Note: If you have an ancestor who was aboard one of these ill-fated vessels (as a passenger, crew member, or ship's officer), or was a rescuer, these titles may prove of interest, as may articles in the Long Island Vertical Files, under the name of the ship (e.g. L.I.—Shipwrecks—Lexington; L.I.—Shipwrecks—Louis V. Place). There are additional sources in the LI REF and NY REF Collections. Online newspaper accounts may provide further information.

- Marriages of Suffolk County, New York, Taken from the *Republican Watchman*, a Newspaper Published at Greenport, N.Y.: Years 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, 1876, v. 1, copied and comp. by Gertrude A. Barber. Salem, MA: Reprinted by Higginson Book Co., 1950, repr. 1997. – Actually the subtitle is misleading. This work combines 4 separately numbered volumes, each with its own surname index. There is no combined surname index, except for a single volume. Each volume covers a range of years, not necessarily those listed in the subtitle (above), and within each volume, the main section is arranged (but not alphabetically) by village. It helps that villages names have been underlined. Marriages are presented chronologically for a single year, under each village. Proceeding to the next year, villages are presented again is the, with marriages for the next year, and so on. Finally, when the marriages of each individual year have been covered, an index to surnames appearing in that volume follows. Again, each volume (or span of years) has its own separate index.
