Entire enlistment devoted to experimenting, testing & developing wireless telephone perfection in connection with aeroplane work.
The progress of which, in just the duration of the war, ranged from crude elementary experiments & probable ideas, to thorough undisputed knowledge and ability to send a message anywhere on the globe, under any weather conditions, at the rate of 300,000,000 metres (186,500 miles) per second.
